Let's Unite

Our website has no intention of dividing the country, people or any political party. We never claim that any logo applicable in our mother land must be altered or changed. Moreover, we have no idea of supporting any political parties including the Muslim Congress or any other parties who may claim to be representing the Muslim Community.

We are purely a registered website under the Sri Lankan government which has permitted us to share information regarding the religion of Islam and other information that are useful for the public at large.

As everybody knows very well with the arrival of Arab traders in the 8th century, Islam began to flourish in Sri Lanka. The first people to profess the Islamic faith were Arab merchants and their native wives, whom they married after converting to Islam. By the 15th century, Arab traders had controlled much of the trade on the Indian Ocean, including that of Sri Lanka's. Many of them settled down on the island in large numbers, encouraging the spread of Islam.

So, we are not against the other communities or any other faith like Buddhism in Sri Lanka. We, Muslims have lived for centuries without any issues with the people of other faiths. Our ancestors who arrived from Arab nations have married the high cast people in Sri Lanka and lived peacefully as one people.

Therefore, we earnestly request those who have completely misunderstood our website to be kind enough to understand the right purpose behind it and if needed please contact us to discuss and clarify any doubts or hesitations regarding this service.
